Brave Cops Get National Recognition

Two Police Officers have been recognised and praised for their fearlessness following their reaction to an armed man. Sgt Gareth Davies and PC John Harrison were honoured with a Police Bravery award at a ceremony in London.

The award was given to them following an incident at the Guildhall in Wrexham shortly before the Olympic torch was due to arrive in May 2012. The fearless duo were called to the scene after an armed man said he was carrying a bomb, they bravely tackled and arrested him. Dozens of staff and visitors had been evacuated from the building when the Officers arrived and the pair went into the building to find the bomber.

There are completely selfless acts of bravery carried out by Police Officers every day and this is a perfect example of one of them. For every act of courage and bravery recognised, there are hundreds more that occur in communities every day that go unrecognised.
